9. Risk warnings

The service is actively managed and whilst we strive to achieve our investment objectives and monitor opportunities regularly, Reyker cannot guarantee that it will achieve the objectives set out for the portfolio.

Investments are subject to normal market fluctuations and their value may go down as well as up and an investor may not get back the amount originally invested.

Although Reyker offers investors the ability to liquidate their portfolio on a daily basis, this is very much dependent on the actual market conditions when investors wish to dispose of the investment. The investment Reyker AIM IHT Portfolio Service is intended to be a medium to long term investment and will be most likely to perform best if it is held for the long term. Investors may suffer a less favourable price if liquidity is required at short notice, rather than giving us to opportunity to sell at the optimum time.

Certain shares held within the portfolio may have liquidity constraints, meaning purchases and redemptions are not available on a daily basis. This is primarily driven by the size of the investment and the prevailing trading conditions at the time. In times of market distress, liquidity can become less available. This means that investors who are looking to sell their assets instantly at a fair price may not be able to access all of their funds immediately. We do not invest in any companies where liquidity is expected to have long term restrictions. However, we cannot guarantee asset liquidity within a predicted time frame since this factor is also governed by market and trading conditions.

This portfolio invests solely in AIM listed company shares. Due to the AIM market being a market for small and medium sized companies, the swings in share prices of AIM listed companies can be more pronounced than those of larger companies. This also means your portfolio valuation could show larger swings compared to other types of investments. You must be comfortable with the swings in value that your portfolio could experience.

Past performance or any yields quoted should not be considered reliable indicators of future returns. This is a commonly used industry risk warning that simply means history is not necessarily a guide to the future.

The extent and value of any tax advantages or benefits arising from the use of tax-advantaged services will vary according to the individual's circumstances. The levels and bases of taxation may also change according to government policy. Reyker does not provide tax advice and investors should seek independent tax advice if in doubt.

Our portfolios are targeted at investors who have received professional advice. We operate the strategies in accordance with certain objectives and risk profiles that financial advisers should be qualified to assess and inform the investors accordingly. It is the responsibility of investors to establish with their advisers whether the portfolio is suitable for them. If an investor's circumstances change they should seek advice as such change may lead to the investment no longer being suitable for them. If this happens, the adviser can talk to us about changing investment strategy or selling your investments.

To ensure there are no misunderstandings, we keep all correspondence with investors and advisers, including emails, for a period of at five years. We also record all telephone conversations with investors and advisers and keep these recordings for at least five years. These procedures are to protect the investor, their adviser and Reyker, and are in accordance with FCA rules.

This list is not intended to be exhaustive and if you wish to discuss the elements of risk affecting your investments then please speak to your financial adviser.
